Schinnerer Newsletter Wins Award

Chevy Chase, MD—Victor O. Schinnerer and Company's risk management newsletter for design and construction professionals, Guidelines for Improving Practice, won the Silver Award in the Institutional Insights category of the Newsletter on Newsletters's annual award competition.

"We're thrilled to have received this high honor," said Frank Musica, the publication's editor. "We've worked hard to keep Guidelines high on technical content yet still inviting to our readers. This award affirms that we're achieving this balance."

The publication, now in its 35th year, is written entirely by Schinnerer's in-house risk management specialists and edited by Musica and Managing Editor, Paul V. Riccardi. The eight-page newsletter features articles on emerging risks in design practice, legislative trends and professional service agreements.

Guidelines is published bi-monthly as a service to CNA/Schinnerer professional liability policyholders in the DesignOne program for design and construction professionals. In addition to Guidelines, policyholders receive other printed materials, such as contract review guides, admittance to Schinnerer-led risk management seminars and access to an online continuing education program on managing risk.

Schinnerer clients can access most of these resources through the website, PlanetRiskManagement.com. Much of the content is password-protected for use by current policyholders.
