Victor O. Schinnerer & Company Celebrate National Surveyors Week

Chevy Chase, MD – Victor O. Schinnerer & Company, Inc. will celebrate National Surveyors Week, March 18-24. National Surveyor's Week provides the opportunity for surveyors in industry, government, private practice and education to promote public awareness of their profession. You can read about National Surveyors Week at: http://www.nspsmo.org/news_events/nat_sur_week.shtml.

Schinnerer will recognize the week with several activities. On March 21st, the movie Building the Alaska Highway will be screened at Schinnerer's headquarters. This documentary features interviews with highway workers, archival footage and Alaskan scenery. On March 22, an expert from the insured firm of Whitman, Required and Associates, Gregory King, who manages the survey department will be speaking about challenges in the surveying profession. Finally on March 28, Schinnerer will host Frank Malits, a principal in the insured firm of Cagley & Associates, Inc. to talk to underwriters and risk managers about understanding and managing the risks of structural engineering claims.

The National Society of Professional Surveyors provides the platform by which members can share their thoughts and opinions about our common interests through business meetings /committees, regional groups, and student chapters. Read more at: www.nspsmo.org.
