

The 2007 AIA Contract Documents

Wednesday, December 5, 2007
12:00 – 1:30 PM (EST)

This event is a web conference that will be hosted by C2Ed.

Each new edition of AIA contract documents incorporates changes that the AIA believes reflects changes in the design and construction industry. It is important for design professionals to be aware of these changes so that they can properly assess how these changes may affect their practices. Since AIA contract documents are often viewed by the legal community as the standards of the industry, knowledge of the 2007 changes is important for both users and non-users of AIA documents. This presentation will focus on changes in the AIA owner/architect agreements.

WHO SHOULD PARTICIPATE?

Principals, project managers, CEOs, CFOs, and others with responsibilities for a firm's risk management

PARTICIPANTS WILL DISCUSS:

The new format and family of owner/architect agreements.

Select new and revised contractual provisions that design professionals should be aware of.
How changes in the 2007 edition may affect professional liability coverage and allocation of risk.

Joseph H. Jones, Jr., Esq., AIA, Moderator

Joe is the director of Victor O. Schinnerer & Company's A/E/C Risk Management Services. Prior to joining Schinnerer, Joe practiced architecture for more than ten years and served the AIA as Assistant Counsel for the Contract Documents Committee. Joe also currently serves as editor for Schinnerer's Proceedings of the Annual Meeting of Invited Attorneys.

Frank D. Musica, Esq., Assoc. AIA:

Frank Musica is a senior risk management attorney with Victor O. Schinnerer & Company, and directs Schinnerer's A/E/C risk management publishing functions. His background includes service as in-house counsel for a west coast A/E firm with a large international practice and staff positions with The American Institute of Architects. During his tenure with the AIA, Frank supported the activities of the AIA Contract Documents Committee and currently serves as insurance counsel to the committee.
